A DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS,

The Members of the Legislature are as Dumb as Oysters in Regard to It. Just before the afternoon session of the House adjourned yesterday Mr. Ryan, of Loudoun, announced that there would be Loudoun, announced that there would be a caucus of the Democratic members of the General Assembly that evening at 8:30 o'clock. As to the object of the caucus nothing was said at the time, and the members were at a loss as to why they were convened. All sorts of suppositions were indulged in—some thought that the Richmond and Manassas railroad bill was to be considered, while others had an idea that Mr. Buford's election bills would be taken up.

When the hour for the caucus arrived all outsiders were promptly invited to leave the room. This having been accomplished, Senators Flood, Hay, Watson, and a few others jumped at once to their feet and moved that the resolution be rescinded which allowed the representatives of the Democratic press to attend the deliberations of the caucus. A viva voce vote was taken, and the motion was declared to be carried.

The members remained locked in for about an hour and a half, and when the doors were finally opened every member appeared to be wrapped in deep silence. All attempts to obtain some sort of information remained fruitiess, and all assured the newspaper men that they were pledged to secrecy.

It was understood, however, that nothing was accomplished, and that the caucus adjourned subject to the call of the Chair. It is also safe to assume that the Waiton election bill, which contemplates the introduction of the Australian ballot

Chair. It is also safe to assume that the Waiton election bill, which contemplates the introduction of the Australian ballot in this State, was under discussion.

The Australian ballot has been tried in Winchester, and has given great satisfaction, and it is understood that an attempt will be made to induce the General Assembly to introduce it in at least some of the counties of this State as an experiment.

WHERE ARE THE PROCEEDS?

And Why Have They Not Been Turned Over to the Proper 'er ons? Some time ago the West-End Dramatic JUDGE BUFORD'S AMENDMENTS BE-FORE THE LEGISLATURE.

The Matter Postponen Until To. Day... The Richmond Northern Rath and Bill Discussed-Second House ression.

The first debate during the afternoon session of the House was caused when Mr. Brugh called up House Bill No. 238, providing for the purchase and distribution of Hurst's Guide and Manual. Several members asked to pass the bill by, and Mr. Moon stated some of the counties had purchased Mayo's Guide, as revised by Messrs. Flournoy and Brow, and he, therefore, offered as an amendment that the State purchase Hurst's Guide for all counties.

After some discussion the previous ques tion was ordered. The amendment offered by Mr. Moon was adopted by a vote of 39 to 24, and the bill was ordered to its engrossment and third reading. Another discussion arose while the bill was upon its passage.

The bill was finally rejected by a tic vote of 45 to 45. Another hitch in the grinding out of Another little in the grinning out of new laws was caused when Mr. Bryant called up House Bill No. 525, which intends to grant a charter to the Richmond and Northern Railroad Company. Mr. Mason varmly advocated the passage of the bill, and stated that it was so guarded as not to interfere with the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad.

Mr. Plicher seriously opposed the measure, which, he said, was only intended to revive the charter of an old company which had run into debt from $100,000 to $150,000, and now wanted to use the new charter to dodge its old indebtedness. Mr. Bryant, the patron of the bill, stated that, in his opinion, the same parties had been to see the gentleman from Faumembers of Richmond to fight the bill. members of Richmond to fight the bill. The owners of the old charter to whom Mr. Pilcher had referred were anxious to sell their franchise, and had offered to do so for the sum of $5,000.

Mr. Crump offered as an amendment that the new company should not acquire the tunnel which had been in part contracted by the Pichmond and Chess.

structed by the Richmond and Chesa peake Railroad Company, nor a right therein without the consent of the City Council of the city of Richmond. The amendment was agreed to, and the bill was then ordered to its engrossment and third reading and subsequently passed.

o Einston L w A fire-brand was thrown into the peace ful camp of the Democratic legislators when Judge Buford called up his bill amending and re-enacting section 12s of the Code of Virginia, in relation to the closing of the polls and the canvass of Colonel Gibson explained the provisions of the bill, which, he said, provided that the ballot-boxes should remain in view of the voters during election day, and that after the closing of the poles the ballots be certified in the presence of the repre-sentatives of both parties as selected by the judges of elections. If these amend-ments were voted down new ground would be given to the false charges made heretofore against the Democratic party, that it was opposed to fair elections. However, he thought the General Assembly of State was demanding fair elections, and if the members did not intend to be onest in that respect they were at least bound to appear so. Mr. Campbell, of Amherst, moved to pass the bill by, but his motion was lost by a vote of 34 to 52.

Colonel Boykin, of Isle of Wight, moved to send the bill back to the committee. He called attention to the fact that the session was almost ended, and that it was session was almost ended, and that it was of the highest importance not to occupy the remainder of the time of the House with the discussion of a bill which intended to make a radical innovation in the existing election laws. It was true that the bill had been considered in the committee, but if it had been thought at the time that the bill would be reported in its present shape, a good many persons in its present shape, a good many person would have appeared and requested that this be not done. He was well satisfied with the working of the Anderson-Mclaw could be framed by any man that would prevent framed by any man that Cormick bill, and he felt satisfied that n very willing to have the bailot box ex-posed to the view of the voters on election day, and he thought that this was required under the present law. He in-sisted, however, that the requirement of admitting frinds of political candidates into the place where the ballots were to counted was not in the interest of a fair count. If this was done, two men would be admitted who were not bound by the sanctity of an oath.

ulah: b. Da gerons. It had been charged that judges of elections had committed fraud, and if this was so, it would be certainly a very dangerous experiment to admit the podangerous experiment to admit the po-litical friends of candidates, who, by some trick of legerdemain, could change the result, and who would have every in-centive to fraud. At present outsiders were only admitted after the number of ballots cast in the box was verified from the politheek and be did not think that the poli-book, and he did not think that it was right to admit them any cooner. He protested against the consideration of a bill which had come from some unfriendly quarters. He protested against it in the name of the people from his section of the State. If any fraud was to be eliminated, it should be done by some measure introduced by a Democratic member and not by an outsider.

Colonel Gibson, who was next recognized by the Speaker, gave way to the patron of the bill, Judge Buford, of Bruns-wick, who said:

"The gentieman from Isle of Wight has seen fit to characterize the source from which this bill comes as one unfriendly to the Democratic party. I hurl back the imputation, and say that I am here as the representative of as good, as respectable, and as numerous a Democratic constituency as the gentleman who arrogates to himself the right to criticize my Democracy and to constitute himself the mouthplece of the Democratic party. I have been a worker in the Democratic cause since my earliest manhood, long before the honorable gentleman who assails my Democracy had arrived at man's estate. I have never yet arrived at man's estate. I have never yet cast a vote against my party. On the contrary, I have at all times and on all occasions devoted my best energies and whatever of talent I have possessed to its success. I have never made war upon my party. The fight I have made, and by virtue of which I have a seat in this hall, was against a ring which sought to convert the organization and machinery of the Democratic party into an instrument to advance and promote the personal aims of those who constituted its membership, and which exacted no other sonal aims of those who constituted its membership, and which exacted no other test of fealty to party than blind aliegiance to its fortunes; a ring that had respect for party organization and party nominations only in so far as they squared with its hidden plans and purposes; a ring that welcomed to its ranks Republicans of the dirtlest stripe, and deepest dye, and assigned to them the highest seat in the political synacogue to the seat in the political synagogue to the exclusion of true, tried, and life-long Democrats. If to oppose and to down such a ring be treason to the Democratic party. party, then I am a traitor. Between them and me there can be no truce. The war is flagrant; I ask no quarter and pro-

Mr. Speaker; I hope I will be pardoned for saying that I think it comes with exceedingly bad grace from any member on this floor to taunt me with being an independent without first having allowed me an opportunity to vindicate myself. It was referred to a committee and was pigeon-holed, and I have been and was pigeon-holed, and I have been denied the poor privilege accorded to the criminal of being confronted by his accusers, and of being heard in his own defence. Of this I make no complaint. The committee in the pientitude of its wisdom may have acted wisely. I have no criticism to make, except that it poor democracy ever to subordinate principle to expediency. Mr. Speaker, in introducing this bill I was actuated by one motive, and only one. I wished to insure fair and honest elections, and thus remove a cause of complaint that is surely decimating the ranks of the Democratic party in many sections of the State, even to the point of depiction. I wish to bring back to the household of their fathers those who, in utter hopelessness and despair, have wander ed off in pursuit of strange gods, gentleman from Isle of Wight says that at this late stage of the session it wrong to devote to the consideration this measure time that ed to matters of more important surely, Mr. Speaker, as that there is just God who rules above us, no more portant measure can claim the attention of this Legislature than that of extirpating fraud in our moving from the public mind the susp cion which has now grown into a tainty that in many

Colonel Gibson, of Culpeper, who was the next speaker, stated that while he was not the patron of the bill, yet he was willing to assume the responsibility for the same. He said the Democrats in this State were growing restive unde the manner in which the electoral ma chinery had been worked in Virginia. the last gubernatorial election the Demo cratic majorities had been reduced in all Democratic countles, while in other sections, in the negro belt, an immense Democratic majority had been heaped up as a basis for future Democratic repre-

Colonel Gibson then cited several instances in order to prove the correctness of his assertion, and added that hereafter the vote of Democratic counties in con-ventions would be dominated by the delegates from negro counties. He thought the amendments proposed to the existing laws by Mr. Buford's bill were right and In the interest of fair play. It was certainly not asking too much that friends of the candidates of opposing parties should be admitted, as long as the bill provided that the selection should be made by the judges of election. He thought the members of the General Assembly could not afford to say by their own votes that they would not tolerate even the appearance of a fair election. On motion of Mr. Downing, the House then adjourned until this morning at 11 o'clock by a vote of 19 to 30.

HORSES AND BUGGIES AGAIN. The Street Committee eld a Busy Meeting

The Council Committee on Streets held a regular meeting in the City Hall last night, with the following members present: Messers, Curtis (charman), Allen, Banen, Carter, Frauer, Gray, Stratton, Thomas, and Turjin.

Mr. Allen wanted eliminated from the record the matter in reference to the defeated motion of Chairman Curtis at the recent meeting of the committee, by which record the matter in reference to the defeated motion of Chairman Curtis at the recent meeting of the committee, by which the city sewer work would have been given, out by day labor. Upon opposition of the proposition on the part of Mr. Turpin, Mr. Alien withdrew his motion.

City Attorney Meredith, in explaination of the authority of the committee for providing the City Engineer and his assistants with necessary horses and buggles, said that the only measure which could be construed to give such power was in section 9, chapter 33, of the City Ordinances, authorizing the providing of such mules, horses, &c., and employing such hands as are necessary to carry on the work of the street department. Taking the original purpose of the ordinance into consideration, the City Attorney said he feit that he could not hold that this gave the power which the committee had exercised for the past fifteen or eighteen years. In 1885, said he, the Council passed a special appropriation to procure a horse and buggy for the City Englineer, but in this nothing was said about the maintenance of a team. In conclusion, Mr. Meredith said that the committee, in furnishing horses and buggles for the City Englineer and his assistants, has simply fohowed the precedent established eigniteen years ago.

The question was then laid upon the table, but later on, upon the motion of Mr. Stratton, a report was ordered to be sent to the Council stating that under the general ordinances bearing upon the matter the committee was of the opinion that it had the proper authority to supply the necessary teams for the City Engineer and his assistants to facilitate the work of the department.

The resolution of Mr. Thomas, instructing the City Attorney to take steps towards procuring the necessary land for the opening of Nicolson street from Lester street to the river, was recommended to the Council.

the opening of Nicolson street from Lester street to the river, was recommended to the Council.

The City Attorney was directed to prepare an ordinance granting the Richmond and Manchester Railway Company permission to temporarily suspend the running of cars on the loop from Seventh and Cary streets to Ninth and Main streets. Captala Pizzini explained that this was to allow the street-car company an opportunity to arrange for better schedules and for a better service between Richmond and Manchester.

The committee will urse the Council to make a special approprisition of $1.500 to begin the opening of Spring street from the pentientlary to Belvidere street.

It was decided to recommend that culverts be dug, when the funds were available, on Twenty-ninth street from Marshall to Leigh, and on Twenty-sixth street from Leigh to Clay.

Mr. Curtis renewed his proposition to dig the sewers of the city in future by hands to be employed by the City Engineer at the price fixed by the Councilto transfer the system from contract to day labor.

After a good deal of discussion and some viscorous opposition on the part of Mr. Boykin, Mr. Curtis' proposition was adopted by a vote of 5 to 4.

The committee decided to recommend to the Council the appropriation of $15.000 for paving with asphalt, block or vitrified brick the entire width of the streets around the new City Hall.

Carly on Tuesday night an old woman named Bridget Murphy, who resides at No. 708 north Ninth street, and conducts a small store in the front portion of her house, was brutally assaulted by two miknown men. The two men, one white, the other colored, entered the store by a side entrance and struck Mrs. Murphy over the head with a sandbag, improvised by using a towel with some sand and other articles tied in one end.

When assaulted Mrs. Murphy screame! "Murder!" and the white man ran into the street and called for the police. The old lady was quite painfully but not periously hurt, and the police, who obtained the weapon used, say that if the towel had not torn the blows, in ail probability, would have been serious.

The towel may prove a valuable clue to the discovery of the sessilaris as a name appears on one of the borders of it. A boy in the neighborhood, who claims to have seen the white man, describes him as being about 5 feet to inches high, with a black moustache, and as having a brown evercoat thrown over made.

Before the joint committee appeared the members of the Library Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. Lae delegation consisted of Mr. G. G. Valentine, chairman, and Messrs. Everett Waddey, Carlton McCarthy, and R. B. Lee. They all advocated the passage on the bill, but the Joint committee postponed action.

Hon, Joseph T. Lawless, Secretary of the Commonwealth, will appear before the committee in opposition to the bill. The Joint Library Committee of the
